School directors stand by decision on AES closure

By ALISON ALOISIO
Andover residents will refocus their efforts to keep the Andover Elementary School open, after the SAD 44 School Board Monday declined to rescind its April vote to close the school.
The board voted 10-6 (580-372 by weighted vote) to stand by its April 25 vote in favor of closure. A 222-signature petition from Andover prompted Monday's reconsideration.
Closure saves the district $214,600, which has tentatively been redirected to contingency accounts for potential instructional, transportation and maintenance uses, and to save a Title I teaching position at the middle school.

The 25 pupils projected for enrollment at AES next year will be bussed to the Crescent Park Elementary School in Bethel, unless Andover residents vote to raise the entire sum to keep their school open.

Next steps for town

By ALISON ALOISIO
"Now the work really begins," said one Andover resident after Monday's School Board meeting.
On June 16 residents will vote by referendum on whether or not to raise themselves the $214,600 needed to keep AES open next year.
A public hearing to explain that ballot question is scheduled for May 25 at 7 p.m. at AES.
"If the town doesn't vote to raise the money it would preclude the possibility of an interlocal agreement," Andover director and SAD 44 Board Chair Sid Pew said after Monday's meeting.
By raising the money for FY'12, he said, the town

Town of Bethel Accepting Sealed Bids For Tax-Acquired Property

The Town of Bethel is accepting sealed bids for a house acquired due to delinquent taxes at 37 Balsam Road (Tax Map 15, lot 16-25) until June 6, 2011 at 5:00 PM. The Board of Selectmen will announce the winning bid at their regularly scheduled meeting of June 6, 2011 at 7:00 PM. The property is being sold with one additional house lot (Tax Map 15, Lot 16-26). The minimum acceptable bid is set at $75,000 and the winning bidder will be given 30 days to present a cashier's check for the full amount of the bid. A quit claim deed will be issued to the winner. Any questions should be addressed to the Town Manager at 824-2669.

Harnessing a farmstead's working past

Steve Seames (right) recently purchased the former Scribner Farm house on Route 2 in Bethel, just west of the overpass. He plans to renovate the house so it will appear as it did in the 19th century and return it to its original role as a working farm. He also plans to clear the seven-acre property in order to graze sheep and steers and grow gardens. He is shown here with Bruce Pierce and his Percheron, Jezebel, pulling several logs from the nearby woods for Seames to use as firewood. The steers will work as oxen on the farm.

Antiquarian in the traces for agrarian renovation

By ALISON ALOISIO
Antiquarian Steve Seames has begun a project to return the former Clayton Sweatt house and land in Bethel to its 19th century role as a working farm.
Seames also hopes agriculture- and history-minded members of the community will visit, learn and perhaps even work one of the public garden plots he plans to offer.
The house is located at the western entrance to Bethel, on Route 2. A banner on the front of the mid-19th-century farmhouse proclaims, "Scribner Farm Renovation."
Seames, who bought the house and its seven acres last month, is just the third owner. A native of Greenwood, he returned to live in the area several years ago, after 30 years away, much of it as the director of the Massachusetts Military Museum in Worcester.

Standing outside his new old house last week, he looked at it and said, "I can't believe I own it."
The house is structurally sound, he said, but sills between the foundation and walls need to be replaced.
History
The original section, an ell on the back of the house, was built sometime before 1851 — but on a different site.

Its first location was across Route 2. The building was moved in 1851, and the front section of today's house was constructed in 1877.
With two front, side-by-side rooms, he said, "It was built like the [Bethel Historical Society's] Moses Mason House."
A barn and a carriage house were also built around that time, but have since been taken down.

The first Scribner name recorded as a resident was Adelbert Scribner, who was born there in 1857.
The property operated as a farm on 11 acres, including the land on which the Route 2 approach to the overpass now sits. The Scribner family owned the farm until 1933, when it was bought by the Sweatt family.
Seames bought it from Mary Sweatt, the widow of Clayton Sweatt.

Next steps
In the next month Seames plans to start cutting the trees on the property to create upland pastureland for sheep and a pair of longhorn steers, which will work as oxen in plowing and harvesting the land.
He will also offer community garden plots for interested residents. Extra food that he raises himself will be donated to the Bethel Food Pantry. "I hope to provide sufficient food so everyone can have fresh vegetables once or twice a week," he said.
Immediately behind the house he plans to create terraced gardens to preserve

2011 Town Meetings In Greenwood: Tri-Town again, and time to deal with Town Hall

By MICHAEL DANIELS
Greenwood voters will be asked Saturday to begin thinking about the future of the Depression-era building that for decades served as the their Town Hall, theater, basketball court, supper-and-dance hall and general meeting place, but has sat vacant and unused since it hosted its last town meeting, two years ago.
But first, this year's town meeting voters must take up yet again the question of who will provide the town with ambulance service, and they must decide if they are willing to enter into an enhanced mutual-aid agreement with nearby Woodstock for fire-department coverage.

The ambulance question appeared settled following last year's meeting, at which voters opted by a nearly five-to-one margin (62-13) to stick with West Paris-based Tri-Town Rescue Service, rather than drop Tri-Town in favor of contract with PACE Ambulance Service of Norway.
Proponents of switching to PACE, including Greenwood Fire Chief Albert Curtis Jr. argued that PACE would provide a consistently higher quality of service than Tri-

Town, which is frequently forced to call on PACE for paramedic-level backup.
They also noted that Woodstock had made that change a year earlier and appeared quite satisfied with the arrangement.
But Tri-Town supporters argued that it provided quicker response time than PACE, and they pointed out that if Greenwood dropped Tri-Town, it would be the final nail in the financially beleaguered rescue-service's coffin — leaving local towns with no choice in the matter of who provides Cat beds with bed posts. Dog crates that look like end tables. A litter "box" that stylishly disguises its true purpose. Creating such items has turned into a thriving business for Randy and Brenda Malm of Woodstock.

In 1993 Randy was living in Massachusetts and doing lathe work at home for the Eldred Wheeler Co.
"I had a bunch of extra bed posts," he said. "I decided to make a bed for my cat."
The result — a small-scale version of a quality human-style bed — prompted an acquaintance to suggest Malm try selling them.
"He said 'the way people take care of their pets, I bet you sell a million of them,'" said Malm.
A few years later, after moving to Maine, he did put them on the market, advertising the beds in cat magazines under the company name, "Classic Cat Beds." He made the beds from ash, cherry and mahogany.
"I sold between 250 and 300 in three or four months," he said.
But advertising was expensive, he said, and after a few years the small side business petered out.

WHO ARE WE ELECTING

To the Editor:

A good question people might want to ask themselves these days is, "Who are we electing from our Towns to sit on our School Board?" Monday night as I sat in at a School Board meeting as a resident of Andover, holding onto the hope that the 16 board members who held the fate of our School in their hands would find compassion for our town. It was very eye-opening. I'm not someone to write letters to the editor, I'm usually quiet and blend in with a crowd. However, certain things must have light shed onto them, and I feel compelled to share with you, what I heard and saw with my own two eyes and ears.

Now before I continue on, this is not a ploy to get back at anyone with cheap shots, these are just the facts. I knew going to this meeting that continuing to close the Andover Elementary School was still a high probability. I didn't go thinking we had this in a hand-bag, or wearing rose glasses. What I wasn't prepared for was to listen to Debbie Webster, who is elected by Newry, counter Andover School Board member Tim Akers after he stressed the benefits of a small school for a learning environment. Debbie came back and stated that large schools are beneficial to students as well. I already feel that Debbie Webster sitting on SAD 44 School Board is a huge conflict of interest as she is opening her own private middle school and could potentially benefit from Andover's school closing. Perhaps people would rather send their kids to Newry (her private school) instead of busing Andover kids all the way to Bethel? Wouldn't her Vote to close Andover Elementary be to her own benefit? Now going back to where I had started, Debbie Webster feels a larger school has a lot to offer our Children of Andover. If we look back two months ago in the Bethel Citizen this is what it reads: "The Websters decided to teach their children at home because a public school couldn't match the teacher-pupil ratio she could provide." (Is she saying a large school can't offer as much as a small school can? That's ironic because Monday night she made sure to point out that a large school was good for our children in Andover) The article goes on to say, "We can meet their academic needs individually in a shorter time period than a typical school setting, giving them consistent time to just be kids—play, read, relax and create," she said. "It was also a strong moral decision—we wanted to be sure to instill in them strong core values before sending them away all day long."

So two months ago she feels kids need to have kid time to play, read and relax and be kids and not be gone away from the home all day? How does she feel about our kids being gone all day long on a 45-minute bus ride? In today's world you have to be careful what you say cause it can come back and bite you.

Also I think it's very important for the Public to know that Stacey Sandvoss, a School Board member for Greenwood, asked the superintendent not once, but twice "If we vote to keep Andover School open, your saying no other jobs would be cut?" The Superintendent David Murphy assured her, that was correct and actually it would re-instate two jobs (Because of two recent retirements in Andover School) Surely after her checking her "ts" and dotting her "is" she would vote not only to keep Andover open at no additional cost or loss of jobs, but it would also give two teachers back a job. Wrong! She knowingly voted to close AES, and to shut off the opportunity for two teachers to get their jobs back. Why? So the money can sit in contingency funds. The money to keep Andover open, $214,000, is still going into the budget and not saving any towns money. Instead it will be a nest egg for SAD 44. I really think some of the School Board members have pushed through their own personal agendas. We elect people to represent our towns and make educational decisions to better SAD 44 not just Bethel. It feels like we're in a one-sided relationship, we are good enough to take money from, but not good enough to be extended an olive branch. (We only asked for one more year for SAD 44 to support us, while we looked into other options) That being said, I think towns should really look into who they elect to sit on the board. I will say that there are some School Board members putting education first and I thank them for that. Unfortunately the truth is it's the minority.

CANDIDATE FOR SELECTMAN

To the Editor:

I grew up in the Town of Bethel hearing the selectmen referred to as the "town fathers," for good or ill, depending on how one felt the proper direction of the vote should have or should have not gone. Some people still refer to them as such. Since I am running for the office of selectman (a.k.a. selectwoman, although I am not big on political correctness) and if elected it would naturally follow that I would be a "town mother." Now, that description I can relate to as I have grown children and grandchildren.

For the past twenty years plus I have been employed by SAD 44 in the transportation department driving your children to and from school. I have served on the Planning Board and am currently on the Board of Appeals. I firmly believe, that if possible, it is important to serve your community and give of your time for the benefit of that community. To that end I would appreciate your vote. I will do the very best I can to represent you. I am also sure there will be a learning curve as there always is when tackling something new. When I need to be educated on a topic I am unfamiliar with and if I feel you can help I am counting on you folks to help me make informed decisions.

VOTE DOWN SCHOOL BUDGET

To the Editor:

SAD 44 school board members recently voted to close Andover Elementary School unless Andover citizens are willing to pay an additional assessment of $214,000 over and above the $480,000 already assessed to the town. Their justification for this is declining student numbers, yet the Superintendent continues to allow some Andover children to attend other schools rather than keeping them in the school in the town in which they reside. School population figures would show a different picture if this practice was stopped. If parents want their children to go to another school—they should be paying—not the town.

Andover students have shown they are getting an excellent education, meeting and exceeding the scores of other students from other towns in the district. Closing our school would not only hurt our children, but also adversely affect the whole community of Andover. This move has raised many unanswered questions. Why is Andover being assessed the additional $214,000? What will this money be used for? Will your school be next? Is this the beginning of a move that will ultimately result in a huge new school that will house all district elementary students thus resulting in huge debt to the district?

I urge all district citizens to vote the upcoming school budget down until these questions can be answered and I urge all Andover citizens to become involved in the effort to find a solution which will keep our school open. Whether you have children in school or not—the ultimate fate of the school will affect you—not only as a taxpayer but also in keeping our community alive and thriving. Without children there is no future. We can't let this happen. Please vote the proposed budget down and join with us in working for the future of the children and all towns in the district.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ON TYLER ROAD

To the Editor:

The Tyler Road is in Mason Township, Maine. Its creation as a public road can be traced to 1803. Records of the road are also found in town documents following incorporation of the Town of Mason in 1843. Deeds describing properties along the road consistently reference the road as a town way. When Mason de-organized in 1935, jurisdiction over the road passed to Oxford County.

Today, Mason Township has a small year-round population. It is located west of Bethel, near New Hampshire. Most of the township now lies within the White Mountain National Forest. Over the years, the county has maintained the Tyler Road at public expense at a level consistent with local needs. This maintenance included occasional grading and repair of storm damage. The road is not plowed in winter months.

The road provides access to a number of privately held parcels whose owners use their land for cabins, camping, 4-season recreation, and timber harvesting. The road also provides public access to the National Forest. Property owners in the township and the public have relied on the public status of the Tyler Road for generations without challenge.

Unfortunately, in the past year a couple who purchased a 21-acre parcel straddling the road in 2005 has challenged whether the road is public. They have filed a law suit asking the court to declare that the road is their private property. Our efforts to resolve the dispute have not been successful. As news of the dispute spread, county officials received more than a dozen letters, plus numerous phone calls, from residents urging the county to retain its longstanding public control of Tyler Road. Given the great expense and difficulties the litigation will entail for the county, and on advice of our legal counsel, we have determined that it is in the public interest that we exercise our statutory power to lay out and take roadways to reassert the public's rights to Tyler Road rather than leave it to the long and costly process in court.

Nobody likes to use eminent domain power. We are doing so not to take anything away from anyone, because the road has been there some 200 years, but only to clarify its legal status. It is unfortunate. However, it would be far worse for the County Commissioners to ignore a small community's heritage, and turn their backs on local property owners and a much larger public—all of whom rely on the Tyler Road for a variety of endeavors.

KUDOS TO TELSTAR MIDDLE SCHOOL

To the Editor:

Kudos to the Telstar Middle School group and their advisor Melissa Prescott for the work that they have done in setting up Bethel's inaugural Relay for Life on June 10. It would be hard in this day and age not to know someone who is fighting or has fought the battle against cancer. The only way we can lick this horrible disease is with research. And that usually means supporting teams of researchers for years in hopes that one of those teams' ideas turns out to be successful. The American Cancer Society funds many such research teams but can only afford to fund a small percentage of those teams that have promising ideas because of limited funds. Relay for Life is the signature fundraising event of the American Cancer Society and it is finally coming to Bethel. It is a walkathon where participants will be walking laps around the track and the adjacent pathway from 12:30 to 8:30 in this 8-hour Mini Relay.

The kids have started the ball rolling. But Relay is known nationally as a community event. It is being held on the school grounds but the event is open to everyone, not just students, and you need not be present for the entire event to participate. It is now up to the adults in this community to rally behind this cause adopted by our youth and show our support. There are many ways that you can show your support.

How can you help?

—Form a team or join a team. Details to register can be found at: <http://www.wix.com/tmspop/trails#relay-for-life>.

—Help out with the organization of the event. In particular, Melissa is looking for someone who can take over the organization and solicitation of food for the 5:30 BBQ. Melissa can be reached at prescottm@sad44.org. Help out with the running of the event by volunteering to do such things as cook burgers and dogs, or come at the end for the cleanup committee.

—Make a donation to someone who is participating.

—Drop in/Drop off: Come by on Friday, June 10, between 12:30 and 8:30 and walk a lap in honor or in memory of a cancer victim and drop off a donation while you are there.

I hope that you can consider being involved in this wonderful community event in one form or another. Thanks for whatever you can do.

The First Years: Settling In

B.B. came to meet me and we had supper with Miss Fan. She, before her marriage, had lived for eight years in Marblehead and she couldn't wait to hear how the boys liked the city. I could hardly wait to get back up here, to make the turn onto the dirt road and ride up the hill. It had not been a dream after all. Celladore was still here. The shadows over the mountains were mysterious, the low shingled house sat snug and sheltered by the north hill as though it had always been there. The first real thing I noticed was the porch. "Why, you've found a place to put the loom and the spinning wheel and all those extra chairs; it looks wonderful."

"Hurricane Edna did most of that," said B.B. "you should have seen the spinning wheel go sailing over the fields and into the woods. I think that I found all of it though. All the woodbine vines were stripped from the porch posts before I could even get out the door to try to batten down the best of the porch furniture. Some of the oldest lawn chairs were broken, not antiques, so I split them up for kindling wood. The peach tree and the pear trees were uprooted but we had no serious damage. Come see what I've done in the house, though I didn't get half as much accomplished as I planned to."

We went in the front door. B.B. had made use of all the available space there, the triangular opening under the stairs. There was a shelf for hats, a rod to hang a few coats. The lower part was filled with drawers. He had found two long thirty-inch ones in the attic which would go next to the floor. Above them he had built a twenty-inch and a ten-inch drawer. The little one, he explained, wouldn't hold much but it was necessary to fill the space to make a clean line; it might do for gloves. In front of the lowest smallest triangle next to the floor was a little door. Since the living room was still like a secondhand store anyway, he had moved the surplus boxes in there. He finished by saying, "Since you seem to want to keep a lot of beds around, I put the single rollaway in behind the coat bar." It was a marvel of ingenuity; my mind raced with pleasure. In one of the large drawers I could keep all my sewing supplies.

We moved on to the living room. He had extended the sills of the three joining windows on the south wall and under them made two twelve-foot-long shelves for books. I admired the work much, our eyes met, we smiled, each of us thinking we would have to fight off Miss Fan or she would have the wide sill loaded with knickknacks. "I didn't dare build any bookshelves in the north room," B.B. went on. "The floor is so shaky; it will have to be fixed before any more weight can be put upon it. Come upstairs."

He had rehung two doors so that they now swung into the bedrooms which left the hall space free. On the one wide wall stood the pearwood blanket chest. After coming home from the wars, we had bought it on our fourth wedding anniversary, the first one that we had spent together. We had borrowed a car and gone driving over all the back roads, up and down hills, rejoicing once again in the flashing colors of autumn.

"Open the door under the eaves," said B.B. I did; all the boxes were gone. There was a four-foot-square open space in the middle, and around the three sides from floor to ceiling were shelves of varying heights and widths, glorious empty shelves. "You can paint the walls and ceiling white for light," said B.B., "and then you ought to have room enough for a linen closet, your knitting and sewing things and all the clatter that you always wanted to save but couldn't due to moving. I put all the stuff that was in here in the southeast room. It was the nearest place and seemed to be the most unsettled." I was drunk with joy already, but there was more to see. We went into the big southwest bedroom. On the low wall under the sloping roof were more bookshelves. "I thought," said B.B., "that this would give you a start on emptying boxes and get you out from under the shadow of that stump." My thanks were enthusiastic. I could hardly wait for morning to come to commence.

About 85 people turned out for Monday's meeting, and for half an hour directors listened to their comments.

Andover residents expressed concerns about the effect of closure on the future of the town itself and its economic well-being. Several asked to keep the school open another year in order to give residents time to come up with an alternate plan for its future. Some questioned directors' motives in voting for closure.

Among the comments:

"No one really knows what this will do to the town or the school district," said Mark Shraiberg.

"We are a family, not just a school," said Jim Coolidge.

"We're sending children who are little more than babies on two 45-minute bus rides a day," said Janet Farrington.

"I believe this board is basing this decision solely on the bottom line," said Wayne Delafio. "This is a very dangerous direction you're taking. What happens if some town starts to follow you lead, and starts basing their relationship with the district solely on their budget? I also believe that if you pass this school closing you are beginning the first stages of dismantling this school district."

Also speaking in favor of keeping the school open another year were Oxford County Commissioner Dave Duguay and State Rep. Matt Peterson (D-Rumford).

As for Andover's option to raise the $214,600 itself to keep the school open, Selectman Keith Farrington, a former SAD 44 director, said that is not enough time for town taxpayers to adjust to the expected 25 to 30-percent tax increase that would be needed.

Farrington proposed an interlocal-agreement style arrangement between Andover and the district under which the town would pay more money, but less than $214,600, to the district to keep AES open. For example, he said, Andover could pay for the cost of operating the building itself.

Supt. Dave Murphy said, however, there was not enough time left in the FY'12 timeline to set that up for next year.

Directors weigh in

When board members had their turn to comment, Andover Director Tim Akers said he felt the decision to close had come too late in the budget cycle and without enough consideration. Fellow Andover directors Sid Pew and Keith Smith also argued against closure.

But Bethel director Lynn Arizzi said Andover residents would still have the option to pay to keep their school open next year, and they could then propose an interlocal agreement for future years.

Newry Director Deb Webster, a member of the board's Finance Committee, defended putting most of the $214,600 into contingency accounts. She said the funds could be used to hire another teacher for grades that might otherwise have more than an advisable number of pupils in the classroom.

And any money not used, she said, might be carried over to the following fiscal year, when federal funds that the district has received will run out.

Webster also said that Andover voters had an opportunity at their 2010 town meeting to decide to raise money to keep their school open, and declined to do so. [The closure was first proposed last year, in order to give the town time to consider its options.]

Bethel Director Pat Nasta said her vote to close the school was not just about money.

"If we had an unlimited budget we would have smaller schools in every town," she said.

And regarding concerns about lengthy bus rides, she said her own children had had long rides to elementary school. The rides included legs by both car and bus through Waterford and Albany. She said her children had still "thrived" in school.

Directors Sheryl Morgan of Woodstock and Kristen Drew of Bethel changed their votes from April, voting Monday against closure.

Morgan said she had previously believed closure would save taxpayers $214,600, and after learning that was not the case, she said she preferred the money be spent to keep the school open.

Also voting against closure were Pew, Smith, Akers and Marcel Polak of Woodstock.

Polak said possible uses of the contingency money were only theoretical at this time, while closure of the school would be a certainty. Given that choice, he said, he would vote out of concern for the certainty.

For the next steps in the AES process, see sidebar.

The School Board will hold a special meeting May 31 to set dates for the district vote on the proposed $9.6 million FY'12 budget. The district-wide meeting is expected to take place June 21, with a referendum validation vote on the figure approved to follow on June 28.

AES kids on TV

On a happier note for the Andover Elementary School, district officials praised the school and its staff for a "Kid Correspondent" video piece on Channel 13, WGME. To see the video, go to www.wgme.com/newsroom/features/correspondent/videos/vid_58.shtml.

Andover

would be in a position to approach the district about an agreement for the following year to divide funding for the school between Andover and SAD 44. Andover would still shoulder a greater percentage than it would under a normal school budget scenario.

If the town declines to raise the funds this year, the only way the school could be reopened in the future would be by a vote of the School Board.

The Save/Recreate Andover Elementary School Committee will meet in Andover tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. to discuss strategies to save the school.

BACK IN BUSINESS—Brenda and Randy Malm in their new workshop, with a dog crate/end table. (Photo: A. Aloisio)

He continued his at-home lathe work for Eldred Wheeler. In 2005, not long after he and Brenda got married, a friend suggested Randy give pet furniture another try.

He did, adding dog beds to his products and changing the company name to Classic Pet Beds.

Then Brian Peterson, owner of Peterson's Pet Stop in Bethel, suggested Randy add dog and cat "feeders" to his selection. Feeders are table-like structures with pet-dish-size holes carved into them to hold the dishes and elevate them.

The pet products store Pet Quarters took an interest. "They loved them," said Randy. "They started buying 180-200 of them every four months."

Two years later, Randy and Brenda went to a trade show in Chicago, and "more stores began taking us on," he said.

In 2009, Randy started designing wooden dog crates that can double as end tables. "We haven't had a day off since," said Brenda.

The crates feature a lift-off top, allowing easy access to bedding and for cleaning. In addition to standardized models, Randy also makes custom crates.

They sell some of their creations through their own website, but most of the sales are still made through the sites of large chain stores.

Their business continued to grow right through the recession, proof that many people will still find a way to pamper their pets.

In addition to growing numbers of orders, the Malms also received positive feedback from satisfied customers.

"One customer bought a cat bed at Christmas time," said Randy. "They sent a photo of their cat on the bed and said, 'The cat hasn't left the bed since Christmas.'"

"Another customer wrote that the woodworking in one of the dog crates was so good he wanted to use it as his bar," said Randy.

Two years ago, in response to the growing demand for furniture, Brenda, who formerly worked at other jobs, started devoting all of her time to staining, packing, paperwork and other support tasks. And last year the Malms hired a full-time employee, Mike Hart, as well as a part-timer.

Late last year, between the holidays of Thanksgiving and Christmas, they cranked out hundreds of furniture pieces, including 270 feeders.

Then disaster struck.

In February a fire destroyed the workshop next to their home.

They were able to salvage some equipment, but the business was brought to a standstill.

With orders waiting, they scrambled to rebuild.

With the help and support of the town and local building supply and other companies, Randy and Hart built a new, bigger workshop in two months.

"It was really a blessing in disguise," said Brenda. "The other shop was really too small."

People who had ordered furniture have been patient.

"Some of them have been waiting since December," said Randy.

This week he got back to work filling orders.

"It feels good to be making furniture again instead of building," he said.

The public is welcome to stop by and visit the workshop at 169 Cushman Road (Monday through Friday, 8 to 4). To read more about their products, go to www.classicpetbeds.com.

The supporters prevailed, but the actual article approved last May only authorized the selectmen to negotiate an inter-local agreement with Tri-Town and West Paris for the ownership and operations of the service — an agreement that would have to be brought back to voters at a special town meeting for approval.

But when that meeting was called, the voters who turned out turned down the agreement, 32-30.

That was not, however, the end of the matter. After consultation with the town's attorney, the selectmen concluded that only the contract in question had been rejected — the vote did not mandate that the town end its existing agreement with Tri-Town.

Article Five on this year's warrant asks voters if they wish to continue with Tri-Town, at an annual cost to the town of $12,030.

If they decline, the town will enter into an agreement with PACE, which is funded by patient fees and requires no contribution from the town.

The next article on this year's warrant asks voters wish to begin an "enhanced mutual aid" program with Woodstock, under which the two towns' fire departments would each contribute one firefighter a day to provide two-person daytime coverage of either of the town fire stations, on an alternating-day (e.g., Monday in Greenwood, Tuesday in Woodstock, Wednesday in Greenwood ...) basis.

Woodstock voters have already agreed to such an arrangement.

Town Hall

The following article asks voters to begin thinking about the future of their Town Hall.

"The Board of Selectmen and Budget Committee will be asking the Greenwood voters for direction on what they would like to do with our Town Hall, located on Main Street," Town Manager Kim Sparks says in a letter to this year's voters.

In 2009, the town's insurance agent inspected all of the town's facilities and strongly recommended to the town manager to not allow employees or residents use the Town Hall until the mold in the building was removed.

"The selectmen and Budget Committee have had several discussions on what to do with the Hall and understand that mold remediation can be expensive.

"There have been some suggestions from a few residents: to move the Town Hall out of the wet area that it presently sits in to a dryer location, move the Town Office back to the Town Hall, sell the building, or tear the building down."

The estimated cost of eliminating the mold problem she said, is $80,000 to $90,000.

This will not be the first time the possibility of selling the Town Hall has been brought to town meeting.

In 2000 then Selectman Albert Curtis Sr. submitted an article calling for the building — which he described as "falling down" — to be sold.

The article was defeated 50-3.

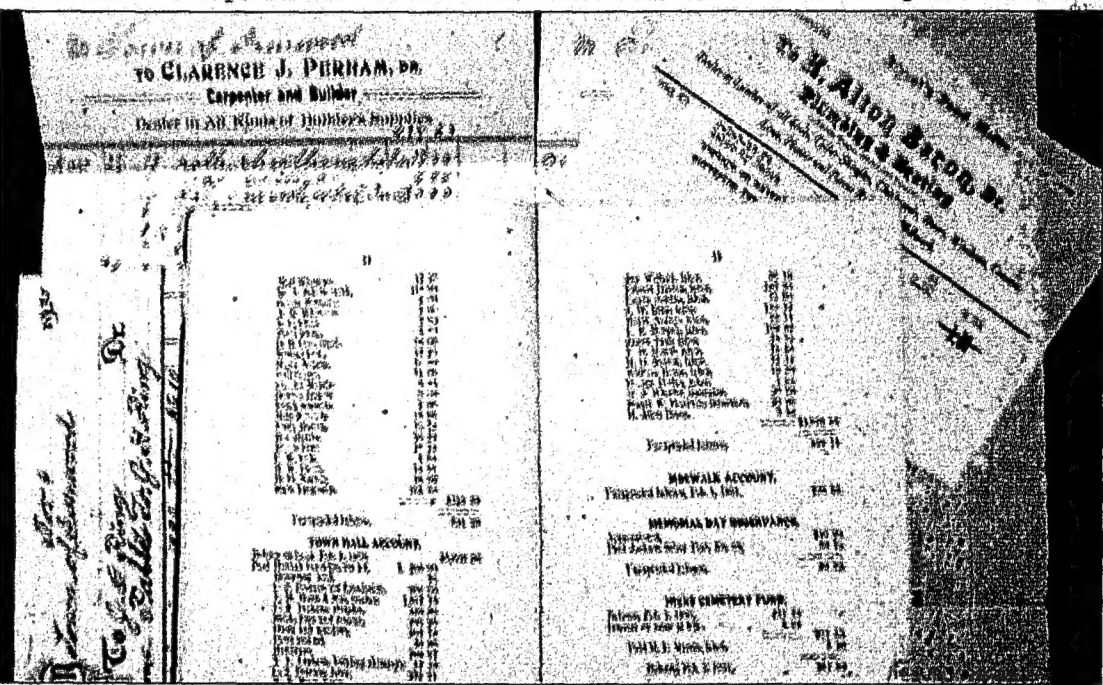

In elections Saturday, voters will pick a selectman and school director, each for three-year terms.

Incumbent Selectman Arnold Jordan is seeking another term and has no announced opposition.

Voters will also be asked to replace School Director Erin Collins, who has moved from town.

There are no announced candidates for the position, Sparks said.

Saturday's annual town meeting will be held in the Jackson Silver Post, beginning at 10 a.m., with lunch provided at noon by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Greenwood Fire Department.

Most of the floors are original wide pine boards, which he will refinish.

Two rooms will be devoted to his extensive library of 25,000 books. To create more room upstairs in the three-story house, Seames will raise up the roof of the ell by about 14 feet.

Outside, he plans to rebuild the first- and second-story porches that had been on the front of the house. Later this year, he hopes to build a new barn, and in the future a new carriage house, as well as a blacksmith shop.

Using the Washburn-Norlands Living History Center in Livermore as a model, Seames hopes to use his farm and house as an educational and museum center that the public can visit. Seminars, including some on organic farming, would also be offered.

Seames encourages anyone interested in seeing the progress of his project to stop by.

TRAINING LEFTOVERS—Last weekend's annual Western Maine Fire Attack School, hosted by the Bethel Fire Department, included instruction on extrication of accident victims from vehicles. Firefighters from Maine and New Hampshire practiced several scenarios: a side impact, a car striking a school bus from the rear and running underneath it; a rollover accident; a car lying on its side; and a tree falling on a vehicle. The vehicles were donated by Gaudreau's, and will return to Gaudreau's for crushing. The bus, which belongs to the BFD, will be used again for training, according to Chief Mike Jodrey. Firefighters also practiced safely removing air bags from vehicles. "We blew a dummy 15 feet in the air with an airbag," said Jodrey, to demonstrate how dangerous they can be to rescuers. Other training exercises included rappelling off a platform at the BIG Adventure waterslide and practicing firefighter rescue inside the BIG maze. (Photo: A. Aloisio)

Theater News

"Beauty and the Beast" at Telstar it was all about symbols. The castle was the play's center of power and the French maitre d, Lumiere, in the form of candelabra played by Dusty Bailey; along with Cogsworth, the major domo, turned into a clock played by Dylan Coolidge; head of the kitchen, Mrs. Potts, turned into a tea pot, played by Emily DeCarolis; and her son, Chip, turned into a chipped tea cup played by Katie Turnick made up the foursome that moved the story along. Outside the castle, Belle, played by Emily Bellinger, and Gaston, the self-centered hunter-Romeo, played by Daniel Vaughn, turned the story into a love battle joined by the Beast/Prince for the love of Belle.

Of course the Beast wins with a declaration of love, Gaston is vaporized and all the symbols come back to real life. Overall, the "Beauty and the Beast" is a much more complex drama than it seems. Although previous Telstar performances of "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Guys and Dolls" were more real life, this year's presentation by Telstar Theater was definitely a more difficult story to tell.

And the Oscars go to Lumiere, Dusty Bailey and Gaston, Daniel Vaughn. It was a good show to watch; however, I had difficulty hearing speaking parts over the music.

"Godspell" the show we watched Gould Academy's Student Theater present on Saturday evening was to my mind St. Matthew's Gospel performed like a cheeky West Side story. It was a story that was exhaustingly well presented by players who seemed like they were all headed toward stage careers. Alex Sponberg as John the Baptist stole the show in what I saw as a Marlon Brando version of the Baptizer. Amalia Sie-gel playing the role of Jesus led the show and tells the story - extremely well I thought yet also with a good dose of "flip" that is Godspell. There was never a dull moment. Although the story moves the cast from unruly self-indulgent to true believers in cooperation but still holding a flip attitude, the solemn ending of Jesus-death and funeral procession from the stage was very moving. The cast were all winners.

Most laughable moment came when John the Baptist, baptizing the crowd with a can of water and a sponge, tossed the last of the can's water into the air to catch anyone he had missed.

Brent Bachelder

As a Telstar graduate and North Newry native, Brent Bachelder's career demonstrates how an imaginative, artistic talent and an outward going personality can lead to a successful visual arts career. His mural commemorating NTL's 50th anniversary and its removal from the Bethel scene prompted the writing of this profile of Mr. Bachelder.

Jan Baker e-mailed this to me about whom she called one of her all-time favorite art students at Gould Academy, Brent Bachelder.

"Brent was in one of Gould's early summer school classes, in the early eighties. I believe he returned for a second summer. He was a young boy with ideas, and energy and you knew that he was going places! One of Brent's projects was a mural, in the style of Picasso which was painted on an exterior wall of Gould's Art Cottage. The mural was a response to an assignment, and had not been planned to be a permanent installation. It was, however, so good, and so much an embodiment of his playfulness and talent, that it stayed. The Art Cottage was painted in the fall of 2010, and, after twenty some odd years of exposure to the elements, the mural fading and peeling away. After much discussion, it was decided that it was time for the mural to be painted over. It was, however, for several decades, a much enjoyed part of the Gould Academy Art Cottage scene.

"Brent also created a three-dimensional model of the Drawing Studio in the Art Cottage, and it was my first exposure to a talent and ability for miniaturization that would serve him well in his career after attending the Rhode Island School of Design."

After Telstar and Gould, Mr. Bachelder attended the Rhode Island School of Design and Rhode Island College from which he holds a BFA degree. In 1989 he opened his own business, Club Neopoli Creations; he has taught several classes at Rhode Island School of Design including Faux Finishing, Murals, Decorative Painting and more. He is currently very busy creating murals for roller blading rinks in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. He has been a resident of Providence, R.I., since attending the RI School of Design.

In 2008 and 2009 Brent served as Director, Out of School Time Providence City Arts for Youth. During this time, he supervised a youth project for Fagnoli Park in Providence. A video of this project's progress is on YouTube.

Some images from the video show Mr. Bachelder at work with youth and their murals; you can see these online at www.betheljournalists.info/Bethel_News.pdf. Brent's Website is at <http://www.clubneopoli.net> where you can see his current work at roller rinks.

Bethel local candidates
Bethel Town Clerk Christen Mason prepared a memo for the last selectmen's meeting which listed named candidates running for election at town meeting time. Candidates for the two selectmen vacancies are: Jim Bennett, Seabury Lyon, Lloyd Sweetser, Pat Carter, Larry Smith, and Peter Southam.

Donald Bennett (selectman) and Robert Blake are candidates for the two Assessor vacancies.

There are three candidates for SAD director: Katherine Botka, Roberta Taylor and Erin Collins.

New electric meter installation

Letter to the town manager from Central Maine Power Co. about installing new (smart) meters informed him that VSI Meter Services contracted to do the work. VSI uses their own vehicles not CMP orange trucks. VSI vehicles will be clearly marked. Their employees will carry picture identification and wear work uniforms with a CMP/VSI logo. Work will begin shortly.

Bethel Early Learning Center fund drive

On Saturday, May 28, the Bethel Early Learning Center will hold its first fund-raising yard sale at 31 Main Street. Items will be priced from $1 to $2; baked goods and lemonade will be available for donations. The learning center's goal is to raise money for an electronic door lock so that a staff member can unlock the front door from inside the building and not have to walk to the door every time someone enters or departs.

Kenyan Orphanage - African Dinner

Deb Lewis has provided more information about the African dinner to be held at the West Parish Congregational Church at 5:30 p.m. on May 21. In addition to the supper, given to raise funds for the orphanage supporters of the orphanage, they are also requesting donations of fleece jackets (all sizes/can be previously worn), soccer balls (new and/or used) and yarn. People who have already visited the orphanage which is supported by the Quakers of Maine will speak after the dinner. Tickets are $8 per adult and $5 for children.

Mahoosuc Community Band Concert

Sunday afternoon the Mahoosuc Community Band drew a large audience in the Congregational Church for its spring concert.

Loudest applause came for a rousing medley of Irving Berlin showstoppers. The medley closed with "There's No Business Like Show Business." A special Solo for Baritone and Piano was presented by Telstar musician Simon Smith, baritone horn and Elizabeth Smith at the piano. The afternoon program ended with a good old traditional marching band number, Hands Across the Sea by John Philip Sousa.

READING LOFT—Parents from the West Bethel Head Start set a goal to provide a reading loft for the classroom, established a plan, sold endless fund raising items, created a blueprint, constructed the loft and then installed it. The loft has given the children a quiet place to read, visit with friends or just relax. Gavin Mitchell and Phil Dougherty were given special recognition for their work. Gavin presented the idea and put together a blue print. Phil constructed the loft in his garage, delivered and installed it. David Pratt, a former Head Start parent, helped Phil transport and put it together.

fighters from many regional fire departments held training sessions at Big Adventure Center. Attendees were organized into a variety of training stations/sites both indoors and out.

Big Adventure Center's somewhat weird and darkened interior for laser tag ought to have given trainees a chance to experience disorientation. The fire departments chose a good place for training.

Outdoor power service
Bailey's Outdoor Power Equipment in Bethel has closed. Shawn Bennett, Lawrence Bailey's grandson, operated the business in South Bethel for the last two years. Shawn now has his own outdoor power equipment business in Rumford at 7 Kerr Street, Rumford, Maine 04276 in the Virginia section. It is on the hill behind Sam's Italian Sandwich Shop (Kerr Street intersects Prospect Avenue).

Shawn Bennett's phone number is 357-1809. He would like to continue to service his Bethel customers and will continue his pick-up and delivery service from his new location.

From Nancy Brown:

May 16-22 is National Emergency Medical Services Week. EMS Week brings together local communities and medical personnel to publicize safety and honor the dedication of those who provide the day-to-day lifesaving services of medicine's "front line." To celebrate the week, Bethel Rescue is inviting people to come by the Greenleaf Station on lower Main Street to meet Bethel's EMS crew. Crew members will be there Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Free blood pressure checks will be available. Bethel Rescue is also offering a free CPR Heartsaver and First Aid Class on Sunday, May 22, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The class is limited to 12 people and those interested must register by May 19 by calling Berta at 462-8984 or Dave at 381-7452.

There will be an African Dinner to benefit the Friends Orphan Care Center of Kakamega, Kenya, on Saturday, May 21, at 5:30 p.m. at the West Parish Congregational Church on Church Street. The Kakamega Orphan Project is a grassroots effort to help children whose parents have died primarily of AIDS. Since 2002 the Friends of Kakamega have raised money to finance the Care Center dining hall and dormitories and provide educational sponsorship. The center is run by Kenyan Quaker women of the United Society of Friends Women, Kakamega. All proceeds from the dinner will go to support the center. The cost for the dinner is $8; $5 for children. For more information, call The Rev. Virginia Rickeman at 824-0550.

There are dozens of local trails and wooded areas where wildflowers are blooming. For the past fifty years I have collected wildflowers in the spring and summer. When I was in elementary school, the spring wildflower project was a tradition. Mrs. Ruth Hastings and Mrs. Doris Lord always held spring competitions to see which student could collect the most wildflowers. Of course, in the 1960s, the project included removing the flower from its natural habitat, pressing it between pieces of wax paper, and then binding pages of pressed flowers into a book. Today, I leave the flowers where I find them, record the flower and date in my notebook, and snap a digital photo. In the past two weeks, I have "collected" more than 30 wildflowers. In the last few years I have found wildflowers I have never seen before; this year, coltsfoot and Dutchman's Breeches. If you are looking for wildflowers, check out some of the local hiking trails. If you are hesitant to go into the woods during the week because of hunters, Maggie's Nature Park is a "gun and bow free" area. There are also easily accessible, moderate trails where there are dozens of wildflowers. They include the Parkway and the trails behind Telstar. Right now the perimeter of Telstar's upper athletic field is awash with blue and white violets. In a week, clintonias, blue grasses, and lady slippers will be in blossom.

If you need help identifying wildflowers, the Bethel Library has books on wildflowers. The library also has a good collection of gardening books, which may help you nurture the plants you will be able to purchase at the upcoming library plant sale. The library is still accepting donations of perennials for the annual plant sale, which will take place on Saturday, June 4, from 9 to 10 a.m. on the lawn beside the library at 5 Broad Street. The sale takes place rain or shine. For more information, call any one of the following: Susan Parker at 824-4767; John Applin at 836-3421; or Susan Day at 824-2741.

New things are showing up in the woods and byways every day. Last week I forgot to mention spotting hobblebush in bloom. It reminds me of the spring dogwood I grew up with in my native Ohio. The scientific name of hobblebush is viburnum alnifolium, and its branches bend down to the ground and take root, thereby making something that can trip, or hobble, you. The blossoms are in six-inch clusters, with one-inch flowers on the outer rim, and very tiny inner flowers. Berries appear later and are red to black. This member of the honeysuckle family is very common in northern New England.

Also underfoot are the leaves of Canada mayflower (false lily-of-the-valley) and starflower. One morning last week Jake and I bush-whacked through some trees, and as I was watching my feet so as not to stumble, I spotted my first lady-slipper in bud. They will be coming along fast and furiously from now on and are my favorite wild-flowers.

We're hearing some wood thrushes and hermit thrushes, chestnut-sided warblers, ovenbirds, black-throated green warblers, black and white warblers, and sundry others that I can't identify by name, except that I know they're warblers. I'd be interested to know which birds you are seeing and hearing. We do have male hummingbirds feeding fairly regularly, and glorious purple finches as well.

Mike and I went to see "Godspell" Thursday night at Gould's Bingham Auditorium. It was a wonderful show, with all the cast doing a fantastic job. Of course, we were very proud to see our granddaughter, Molly, perform the role of Jesus in superb fashion. One of the things that struck us particularly was that the players were all having such a good time, which of course led the audience to have a terrific time, too. Kudos to everyone involved, from directors to cast to costumers to lighting gurus to stage manager. Great job!!

Some of us have begun collecting plants for the library's annual plant sale, to be held Saturday, June 4. This is a very important fundraiser for the library, and proceeds are needed more than ever in this time of tight budgets. If you have any excess perennials you would like to get rid of, please contact me by phone or e-mail, and I will contact the proper authority to arrange to have someone come and get them. We even have volunteers who will help dig and pot up your plants.

And by all means, do come to the sale which will take place rain or shine. Sale opens at 9:00 sharp on June 4, so be there or be square.

Can't write West Bethel news without input from you. Reach me at dhoeh@megalink.net or 824-2917.

May Fair will kick off the 2011 fund raising for the Hungry Kingdom Project on Saturday, May 21 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The days activities at the Christian Education Building of the First Congregational Church will include crafters displaying various talents with their products for sale, a White Elephant table and a huge bake sale. There will also be a raffle.

The Hungry Kingdom program came about when a group of people were challenged to find a project that would be of help to the community. After hearing how many children often come to school hungry across our country, it was decided to undertake the project of feeding our own school children breakfast, lunch and snack milk for an entire school year.

This is the third year of this program which helps many families in these tough economic times. This is a community project with the par-

LOCAL ARTIST RECOGNIZED—Explorations Art Program student Calli Inman was chosen as First Runner Up in this year's Congressional Art Award. Every year one student from each of Maine's two federal congressional districts is chosen to have their work on display in Washington, D.C. at the Capital Building. Calli has been a participant in the Explorations Art Program, (taught by Aria Patch), since first grade. This is the first time Patch has entered one of her students in this program. Calli was chosen from over 50 entrants. The Maine Arts Commission selects one art piece to be exhibited for the year in Washington, as well as a First Runner Up, a Second Runner Up and an Honorable Mention. These four students, along with the four from our other congressional district, were honored at a tea at the Blaine House last Saturday where their work was also on display. tiplication of the First Congregational Church and the Calvary Bible Church in leadership roles. So please come out and support this event and sample some of the great cooks of Andover.

Many local residents were saddened by the fire on Monday evening that destroyed the Lewis Akers farm house that had previously been owned by Victor and Katherine Akers, Florence Kraft and the Strouts and was presently owned by a family from Rhode Island as a part time home. This past winter we also lost the Walter and Mardy Jodrey home on Church Street which was occupied by the Jon Thurston family.

The Andover High School Alumni Banquet committee reports that 90 reservations for this annual event which will be held at May 28th have been received. The evening will honor the Class of 2011. The Andover Education Fund will award three scholarships. The speaker with be Oxford County Sheriff Wayne Gallant. Reservations can still be made by contacting Melinda Averill or Peg Madigan.

Just a reminder that on Monday, May 30th, the Knights of Pythias will be hosting our annual tribute to veterans at 9:00 A.M. Local clergy including Pastor Justin Thacker, Pastor Ken Wagstaff and yours truly will be joining forces to honor those who have given their lives for our freedom or who have given a portion of them to the service of their fellow man. Refreshments will follow in the Town Hall. For the sake of tradition weather conditions will be one of two things, rain or an onslaught of black flies.

Word has been received of the death of Linda Clark on May 12th. Linda and Dan resided on Pine Street for a number of years and were active in church and community activities. Funeral services were held on May 18th at the Dennett Craig and Pate Funeral Home in Buxton. If you would like to send a card to Dan, the address is 76 Haines Meadow Road, Buxton, ME 04093.

The rain keeps coming! There was a really nice day last Friday, but then things went downhill from there. It looks like the rain will be with us for most of the week. It does keep the pollen down and improves the allergies. The perennials are really shooting right up. The rhubarb is also growing a lot each day.

The birds are still busy at the feeders. There are more Hummingbirds every day. The Catbird is still flying around from one bush to another and we noticed that at some point, he/she was joined by another one. We were just talking about seeing most of the colorful birds that arrive in the Spring, but had not seen an Indigo Bunting. He is such a beautiful blue color that he is very easy to spot. Mary Tyler called Sunday to let me know that she had spotted one. She is trying to get a picture.

We thought we saw a Bluebird on the light wires in front of the house but it flew before we could really get a good look at it. We were talking to Jeff Hutchins later in the day and he said that he has some nesting by his house every year.

My brother, Steve McLain, was at the house last Saturday. He helped us out by taking a load of debris to the transfer station. Lise McLain joined the Senior Citizens group for dinner at Crosstones Restaurant this past Wednesday.

Happy Birthday wishes go out to Cathy Newell who has a birthday on May 22.

Norm Buttrick called this weekend and his is doing quite well. Howard Reiche said that 'Stevie' is also making a good recovery from her knee operation.

Fran Head sent an email last week with quite a bit of news. Her son, Rick, who lives in Colorado, called Mothers Day. He was on his way to Hawaii for a job his company is doing, but he took time to remember MOM.

Her son, Chris, visited as did Shannan and family. On Wednesday, they all gathered for a celebration which included a birthday cake for Shannan. Chris cooked homemade French fries which were so good as well as burgers and red hot dogs. As always family visits are so much fun.

David and Fran have come to enjoy an evening game of SEQUENCE, a board game that is one of their favorites. Last week end, Wyatt and Fran challenged Jillian and Grampa to a game and Wyatt and Fran won the best of three. Of course, the week before Jillian and Grampa whipped them royally.

There have been a few close calls with moose at Bog Brook, so look out coming through there. There has also been some sighted at the State Line and at least one was hit by a car. Be very careful going along that stretch of Route 2, too.

Got any news? Call 836-2987 or email chapmal@hotmail.com.

"Rain, rain go away ... " it sure would be nice to have some sun again and be able to soak in the vitamin D.

Last Sunday, Jarrod and Paige Crockett had breakfast with his Mom, Aline Dupont, at the Route 2 Diner and had a great time together.

On May 16, Tasha Vascik celebrated a birthday. Happy Belated Birthday from the whole neighborhood. You are an amazing young lady!

I do hope everyone is filling out the questionnaire you received from Jarrod. He does care and does a good job, so help him do it and voice your opinion.

There are a few reminders like, don't forget about the clean-up day on May 21 or rain date May 22 at the East Bethel Cemetery. I sure will be there unless I have to work that morning.

Also, please, let me know who our neighborhood graduates are so we can congratulate them and don't forget to tell me about your honor roll students. Just call me at 824-3220 or e-mail han@megalink.net.

It is time again for the answer to the Trivia, which is as follows, "Two East Bethel 4-H clubs, the Early Risers and Lucky Clover, ceased to exist in the 1960s." It sure would be nice to revive at least one club again, wouldn't it? Think sunshine!

At last, things have returned to a state of calm around here, if that's even possible for us! My apologies to those of you who missed the column last week. Our family was under the weather, especially the youngest, but I am happy to say that he is on the road to recovery; he's just being poky.

the local gardeners, those of us who thrive when we are covered in soil, backs aching and filthy. Hard to wipe off the grin after admiring a garden just planted or a flower bed freshly weeded.

The Annual Bethel Library Plant Sale is June 4. If you would like to donate any weed-free perennials all proceeds benefit the Library and there is contact info in this week's Citizen. I look forward to the sale every year. The variety of plants is always different, new and exciting and I usually try to pull something from my gardens by way of donation. So mark your calendars.

The drive to and from town is so lush and green now. It's hard not to gawk some days at the woods springing to life. They call to me and I really do need to make the time to take the kids out for an exploration. We still haven't tried out the Grafton Loop Trail - have you? Have a wonderful week. Hope you make the time to get outside. Until next week, Blessings!

Upton

By LAURIE BROWN

Jane Rich of Andover will provide pastoral services at the Upton Union Church on Sunday evenings starting June 5 through September beginning at 5 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend. Anyone interested in helping with ushering or with music at the services should contact Deborah Judkins at 533-2331.

Alison Aloisio's factual report of last week's selectmen's meeting was printed last Thursday. During the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, Selectman Norm Mercier interjected with comments concerning "petitioners right to speak" as written in Robert's Rule of Order.

After the minutes were finished and accepted with the amendment stating that the mail delivery person was not, by law, allowed a key to the mailbox, Mr. Mercier read an excerpt from his Robert's Rule of Order. (Actually, he read the same passage four times throughout the meeting.)

The excerpt explained proper procedures to be followed when parliamentary law is in use. Mr. Mercier was concerned about the legality of the last town meeting and of selectmen's meetings. Again it was explained that Upton, like most small towns in Maine, follow the "Maine Moderator's Manual." At the beginning of every Upton town meeting, the moderator has moved that the town use the rules of that manual, and the town has accepted that motion. These rules are less complicated and more fitting for the circumstances. Town meetings (and selectmen's meetings, etc.) "are not a continuing body. Each meeting is a separate session as if there had never been one prior to it or none would follow it." Hopefully, that issue was satisfactorily explained this time. Not to continue to beat a dead horse, but the introduction in the Robert's Rules of Order states "changes have been and are constantly being made in the written rules which our legislative bodies have found best to adopt. As each house adopts its own rules, the result is that the two houses of the same legislature do not always agree in their practice..." The book is interesting. The origin of the rules is the English Parliament where it's used as the unwritten law. Not so in the USA.

The Treasurer's Report and Town Warrants were presented by the treasurer and accepted and signed by the selectmen.

Although Selectman Bob Brown had stated that he intended to follow his agenda which opened the floor at the conclusion of other business, he accepted comments from the floor earlier since there were 15 other folks present with comments, questions, and issues they wanted heard. Following the "discussion," selectmen voted 2 to 1 to not act on the petition they'd received following April's meeting at the recommendation of MMA.

The same petition with added names and two other petitions were given to the selectmen by Paul Casey. These petitions will be discussed and decisions will be made concerning them at the June meeting.

The revaluation of the town is in progress, responses from taxpayers concerning their tree growth have been received, the repair of Back Street was discussed, the possibility of a CEO, and the need to have tax bills sent out promptly were discussed.

The meeting adjourned about 9:15 p.m. The next scheduled meeting is June 7.

The Ladies Aid Association's annual meeting is Saturday, May 21, at 10 a.m. It's a great time to join the group, make a new friend, and have fun all year round.

DAIRY HEIRS WALK FOR WOMEN'S CANCER IN THE BIG APPLE—After months of planning, preparation, and fund-raising, sixteen local women and eight daughters and grand-daughters from Massachusetts, Connecticut and Colorado gathered to participate in the EIF Revlon Walk for Women's Cancer in New York City April 30. It was the fourth year that the team had participated in the walk. With 24 members, this year's team was the largest yet. The team originally was made up of Hastings sisters Ann Morton on Woodstock, Mary-Alice Bancroft of Paris Hill, and Ginny Gamble of Bethel, who grew up with their brother Bob on the Hastings dairy farm in East Bethel. When they were joined by their daughters, grand-daughters and friends, the team name, Dairy Heirs, was born. The team's bright pink shirts, feature the team name and a filly, well-endowed cow on front and back. Under the rear of the cow are the words: "Behind a cure for cancer." Several team members had names of women in whose memory or in whose honor they walked written on their shirts. Ann Morton, team captain and a survivor currently going through cancer treatment, had her oncology team listed on her shirt as well. She also dedicated this year's walk to her long-time friend Joyce Perkins, who died on March 15, and Ann carried her life-sized picture while doing the 5K walk. Team members wore pink Dairy Heirs hats, white survivor hats, or tiaras. They carried a red Dairy Heir sign as they walked with 30,000 other walkers and runners from Times Square through Central Park to the finish line. At the start a band played and pink, white, and red confetti showered the group. The area was cleared of all vehicular traffic, but pedestrian supporters cheered from the sidewalks. Many teams wore matching outfits, and individuals had signs on their shirts honoring relatives and friends. Cancer survivors wore white baseball caps, and some women proudly wore signs telling how many years they had been survivors. At the finish line teams gathered for photos and received medallions and many gifts from sponsors. There was a feeling of celebration as hundreds gathered in an amphitheater to share their stories. The Dairy Heirs left the large gathering to walk through Central Park in small groups to explore the city before gathering for lunch, fellowship, and karaoke at a family friend's 41st floor apartment overlooking the Hudson River and the city. The group walked about a mile to Grand Central Station, where they met and boarded a train together for an hour's ride to Katonah, N.Y. From there they drove to Leslie Bancroft Townsend's home in Ridgefield, Conn. Games and family stories were shared along with a delicious dinner, then 23 people found places to sleep after a long and eventful day. After breakfast the next day people packed up and prepared to return to their homes. Two flew to Colorado, one drove 500 miles home to Enfield, Maine and others car-pooled and drove north. All returned home to pack away the t-shirt, hat, medallion and sneakers for another time. This year's original team fund-raising goal was $2,011. By June 10 when the final tally is in, they expect to have raised closer to $5,000, for cancer research. Donations may be made online at revlonrunwalk.org and clicking on New York then typing Dairy Heirs under Donations. Checks may also be sent to team members, who will forward them.

spending Memorial weekend with Ilean's son, Rocky and his wife at their camp on Partridge Road. Foster and Ilean will be attending the Andover Alumni banquet on May 28. They are both alumni of the Upton school as well, and always enjoy coming back and visiting with everyone.

If you missed your chance to walk in the rain today (Monday) don't worry, you can do it tomorrow, or Wednesday, or Thursday according to the forecast.

Have a great week. Don't miss next week's column! Selah.

Mason

By RICHARD GROVER

I think May is bird month this year.

Have you seen an unusually large number of blue jays this spring?

We have 12 to 15 of them at a time picking up scratch feed we put out for turkeys. Last Saturday as I was sawing firewood at the edge of niece Elsie's field, I saw several large flocks of blue jays crossing overhead; I counted about 36 birds in one and a similar number in two or three more flocks, plus a couple smaller groups of birds. The birds were all seemingly traveling together and appeared to converge and alight in a small area of woods a few hundred yards from me. I estimate there were more than 100 blue jays in all. Maybe they were having a Mother's Day convention!

Just a few days ago, Mona and I sighted a male cardinal in a tree just outside our dining room window, the first we've seen in Mason since "Mona's pet" of a few years ago. This was just a couple hours after I heard a female cardinal calling while I worked in the front yard.

Last Friday, I was sawing firewood in a large pile of hardwood logs beside the road just the other side of Hutchinson Brook. Suddenly, I caught a flash of movement out of the corner of my right eye. My first reaction was to swat at what I thought was a piece of sawdust or a bug on the right side of my hardhat face shield screen.

When that didn't work, I spun my head to the right to see the offending speck. Rather than a bug, it was a wild turkey, wings outstretched, gliding about 10 feet above the road from the top of the hill to my right, all the way down to the base of that hill and half way up the other hill across the brook from my position. This must have been a distance of nearly 200 yards. While seeing turkeys there is not unusual, this was the first one I've seen acting like a glider.

While on the subject of birds, I put out six new bird houses this spring, mostly on fence posts around my garden and posts that used to be part of my pasture fence. I'm trying to increase the population of tree swallows and bluebirds, which use the same size hole in birdhouses. I'm not sure, but I think there are birds in all the new houses, as well as in a similar number of old ones. Among them are one or two pairs of bluebirds. I have read that tree swallows don't like "birds of a feather" (other tree swallows) nesting too close to their own house, but they don't mind having bluebirds for neighbors. Therefore, I try to get the houses close enough together that we have both species, because otherwise the tree swallows will out compete bluebirds if there is a too limited a number of available housing. I like tree swallows because they help contain the insect population in the area.

Judith Grover tent 17 DUVCW met May 9 at the Grange Hall with 11 members. Old business: it was voted to wait to order DUV Daughters flags until next year as the price has gone up and also the price of markers. So it was voted to write a letter to deceased member's family to see if they wish a flag or marker. If so, maybe they would donate money toward them; flags are $45 a dozen plus tax and postage and markers are $45 each. Memorial Day plans were discussed. Past National President of the DUVCW, Gail Butterfield, will be guest speaker. Hopefully everything else will be the same as last year. Elsie told of events coming up - Dedication of a Civil War Veteran in Yarmouth Cemetery sometime, June 4 and 5 Norlands in Livermore, July 9 an event at South Paris Veterans' home. We are going to write letters to Ryan Reed who is stationed in Iraq and send him a box. He is a former member and Helen Ring's great-grandson. Bring things next meeting. Elsie and Michelle met with the Sons Y Auxiliary of the Sons in Brunswick recently. Sally, Elsie and Michelle visited Tent 23 at Dover-Foxcroft recently, the tent initiated several new members: Forty-two calls were reported. Alice Hoyt received the mystery package. Next meeting is June 13 at Grange Hall. Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday school 9:15 a.m., worship 10:30 a.m., evening service 6 p.m.

My love and prayer are with my husband and all Ralph's family in the death of Ken's brother, Ralph Hoyt. We would like to thank everyone for the cards and prayers.

Remember the Woodstock Alumni Banquet is the 3rd Saturday in June this year. Note change of date. This was so maybe more could attend. Classes to be honored are 1941, 1951 and 1961 and Telstar seniors from Woodstock and Greenwood.

By LORRAINE LARSON

May has certainly not been the May of last year and I think we got thoroughly spoiled what with the lovely spring of 2010. This year has been cool and rainy and I really should get some more heating oil but I refuse to spend any more money on heating oil this spring. Enough already! I really don't like to run out because I don't think it is good for the furnace, but I will go to electric heaters if I have to. Not that they are any cheaper through the winter but they are during the spring because I can heat just one room and get by that way. But I really think the oil and gas prices are ridiculous, not that I have anything to say about it.

I went with Ralph and Lorene to her mother's, Laura Hutchins, house for a lovely meal on Mother's Day. It has been two years since I have been to a family dinner because we had no transportation so it seems good to see the van running again. We had planned to cook out but that changed with the unpredictable weather and had indoor baked chicken, potato salad, coleslaw, parsnips, squash, and peanut butter pie. Those there besides Laura, and us, were Lorene's brother and wife, Greg and Fran Adams and Fran's mother, Eleanor Farrington, and the dog, Peyton, of Sweden. We had a great meal and great company and one can't ask for better than that.

This foolish cat Chloe and I have acquired stayed out all night, Friday, and neither of us slept very well. He came sauntering in around ten-thirty on Saturday morning looking none the worse for wear. Wish I could have said the same for us! I really don't want them to stay out all night because we have all kinds of animal life around here, some big enough to get cats, I think my daughter, Marcia, had it right when she said that darkness brings out the worst in cats. They can find all kinds of things to get into. He's really too nice a cat not to have a good long life. Chloe found the energy to have a fast game of "Tag" with him Saturday evening but I dragged myself to bed and let them have at it. It is fun to watch them usually but I just wasn't up to it.

Crystal Lake left early Saturday morning to spend a week in Texas visiting her son, Brent, and family, and help granddaughter, Hayley, celebrate her third birthday. My, where do the years go? Crystal said she had a good time in the Dominican Republic and I have to apologize for sending the wrong brother there last week. Two days after I sent the news up I suddenly had the thought that it was Paul and Kathy that went with Crystal and Dolly and not Tony. Then I sputtered and said it would have been nicer if I had had the thought before I sent the news up and not after. Crystal said "no harm done but I said "just so long as they didn't expect me to send them there in reparation!" I don't think my budget is quite up to it.

I love the summer months but I miss the basketball. I am not as much of a baseball fan as I am of basketball. It is just too slow to suit me. I do enjoy the golf but I miss watching Tiger Woods, at least the Tiger who was on top of his game. He has had nothing but trouble lately. I hope that will turn around for him soon. Years ago he was even good when he made bad shots. He could use some of that again.

We have finally gotten the platform and altar built in the sanctuary of our church. The restrooms have had an overhaul and look lovely as restrooms go. The nursery is not only enticing to little ones but to some of the 6 to 9 age group as well and even though they know they are not to play there they try all manner of excuses as to why they should be able to be back there. We have a couple of yearlings right now and three new babies expected. We love children and it is so great to have a bunch of them. We are looking forward to Vacation Bible School. According to the advertising on our walls it is going to be PandaMania. Sounds like fun! Speaking of which, I have to get off and send this up because we have a VBS workers meeting this evening and we try to be on time. Until next week you have a good one and God bless.

West Paris

By JOYCE LAMB

The flowering crab apple trees along the back of the house are in full bloom. They look as though it had snowed on them. Tulips are out in many colors. There is even a black one. Spring is here but the weather remains cold.

On Sunday, May 22, the Rev Richard Beal will speak on "A Summing Up" at 9 a.m. at the West Paris Universalist Church. Jim Burke is organist. A coffee hour follows. The new steps at the front of the church await railings and then a coat of paint. The old steps must be fifty or sixty years old, or even more. I never remember that they had been replaced since I have been attending. New curtains for the stage downstairs lighten up the area. New valences to match for the windows will be made soon. It takes a lot of work and time to keep all looking nice.

Last week Androscoggin Home Care and Hospice held its annual Volunteer recognition event at the Bethel Inn. After the luncheon I received an award for five years of volunteer services.

The West Paris Cotton Tops have been walking two miles three times a week for almost ten years.

All slowed down this winter because of all the cold and icy weather. The group averages about six and sometimes only four to seven. We all feel better doing this.

Muffin is getting only dry food again for the canned food does not agree with her. She still begs for it though.

SUNFLOWER COMPETITION ON AGAIN—AES students have taken home American Giant Sunflower seeds for this summer's growing contest. Last summer, Jacob Rainey (above) won the $10 prize last summer for the tallest sunflower. Jacob's was over 11 feet high. He needed his dad's help to measure it.

Health & Safety

The Mahoosuc Kids Association is a State of Maine Department of Human Services Licensed childcare center. MKA is in its ninth year of operation in the MSAD #44 community offering quality after school programs for school-age children. MKA also offers the Summer Adventure Program as a fun-packed alternative to summer childcare needs. MKA is a 21st Century Community Learning Center and embeds creative learning into its programs.

MKA year round staff serves as the leadership backbone of the Summer Adventure Program. Staff members are CPR and First Aid certified and follow strict risk management guidelines. Certified Lifeguards and trained water safety staff all water activities. In case of emergency, the Bethel Family Health Center is just five minutes from CPS base and Stephens Memorial Hospital is just thirty minutes away. The safety and well-being of the children is our greatest concern.

About Our Program & Community Partners

The Summer Adventure Program is a collaborative program offered by the Mahoosuc Kids Association with the generous support of MSAD #44, our local communities, the Bethel Inn Resort and Country Club, Riverview Resort, and the Bryant Pond 4-H camp.

We appreciate the tremendous support from MSAD #44 employees, bus drivers, custodians, secretaries, food service and business office personnel who make it possible to offer fun, safe and exciting summer opportunities for our youth.

Upton Historical Society meets

Our May 1 meeting was held in the Upton School House. This was our Annual Election meeting. We began the meeting with discussions of old business, including the purchase of a copier, an update on Incorporation, MAM membership, and the revision of our agreement with the town for use of the School House.

Following these discussions, we had elections and appointments as necessary. Deborah Judkins was appointed as curator, and Robert Folsom as registered agent. We nominated and subsequently elected Aldro French and Doug Warren as members of the Board of Trustees.

The upstairs of the Upton School House will be open for visitors on Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Please stop by to see our growing collections!

2010-2011 memberships ran out on April 30. To renew your membership, please send your annual dues ($10) to the address below. If you know someone who would like a new membership form, please contact an officer. If for some reason you have not received your new membership card, please contact our secretary through e-mail.

Our next meeting will be Sunday, May 22, at 1 p.m. in the Upton School House (downstairs).

Democrats to meet at inn

The Oxford County Democrats will hold a reception on Wednesday, May 25, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Mill Hill Inn in Bethel. Rosa Scarcelli of Portland will be the speaker as part of the Oxford County Democrat's Rising Stars Series.

Rosa Scarcelli, a Wilton native, is best known for her impressive showing in the 2010 Maine Democratic Gubernatorial Primary. She is the CEO of Stanford Management, a company that employs more than 115 people and provides quality affordable housing to thousands of residents, and is a wife and mother of three children.

The reception will feature Mexican treats and has been arranged by the Bethel Area Democrats, headed by Mike Broderick. A donation of $10 is suggested, and to RSVP please e-mail mikebroderick@roadrunner.com or call 824-6004.

Regional meetings were held in three locations in May by the Oxford County Democrats, in South Paris, Fryeburg and Mexico. Senator Seth Goodall was the speaker in South Paris on environment bills in the legislature this session. Rep. Terry Hayes also spoke on legislative matters. Mike Tipping, Communication Director for the Maine People's Alliance, was the speaker in Fryeburg, along with Rep. Helen Rankin on Augusta happenings. Emery Deabay of the Maine AFLCIO spoke at the Mexico session on the various labor-related bills this session. Rep. Sheryl Briggs, Rep. Matt Peterson and Senator John Patrick updated attendees on various legislative bills. The theme of all three meetings was Issues and Activism.

A Field Trip to the Statehouse sponsored by the Oxford County Democrats was held on Tuesday, May 10. The group, representing Mexico, Rumford, Dixfield, Greenwood, Gilead, Paris and Norway, attended the Senate Democratic caucus, a press event for Maine Clean Elections, both House and Senate sessions, and afternoon work sessions.

A lunch was hosted in the Council chamber by the County Democrats and featured a conversation with Assistant Democratic leader Rep. Terry Hayes, Senator John Patrick, Rep. Matt Peterson and Rep. Sheryl Briggs. Democratic Leader Rep. Emily Cain stopped by to greet the visitors from Oxford County.

For additional information on the Oxford County Democrats, visit the Facebook page, Oxford County ME Democrats, or the website www.oxforddems.org.

"Mrs. Smith Goes to Washington" in Mexico

A performance of "Mrs. Smith Goes to Washington," played by Sally Jones, will be presented on May 21 at the Middle School, Harlow Hill, Mexico, at 7:30 p.m. Sally Jones has been traveling Maine for sold-out performances in Johnson Hall, Gardiner; Celebration Barn, South Paris; Out of the Box Theatre, Lewiston; Opera House, Stonington; and the Maine Women's Hall of Fame at UMA's Jewett Hall, Augusta.

Responses to this production have been unqualified "rave reviews," including those of Catherine Napolitano-Ross from Peru, and Amanda Houtari of the Celebration Barn who said Jones' performance is "magical."

A native of Skowhegan, Senator Smith was a proud New Englander, a Republican in the tumultuous years of the Second World War. She was bright, courageous, and a no-nonsense Yankee who brought honor and reputation to the state of Maine, and to the Senate Floor in her denouncement of Senator Joseph McCarthy as a paranoid demagogue in his accusations and black-listing of people as "communists." The Lady with the Red Rose, her hallmark, did what none of the male senators dared. As a result, she brought fame and respect to her country and her state; gifts seldom seen since. Throughout her successful years of teaching English in Mexico and South Paris, Jones was active in community activities. A mainstay of the Rumford Center Rag Tag Theatre in its seven years of dinner theatre for the Bethel Inn. She also joined the OHMPPAA Performing Arts Association in South Paris. Jones is now a trustee of the Norway Historical Society, and she is in process of co-writing a stage musical.

The intimate look at the "Margaret Chase Smith" script is the finely-crafted work of Linda Britt of Lewiston, an instructor at Farmington College. Between the excellence of script and performance, the evening is a mesmerizing experience. Tickets are sold at Bartash's Card and Gift Store, Congress Street, Rumford for $8 and at the door at the Middle School (top of Harlow Hill) in Mexico for $10.

BHS St. Never's Sale

Bethel Historical Society's 14th Annual St. Never's Day Sale will be held on Saturday, May 28, under the tent on Stan Howe's lawn at the corner of Mason and Broad streets from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Donations of household goods, furniture, tools, dishes, books, etc., in good condition are being sought for the sale, which benefits the society. Please no clothing, tires, computers, etc., or other unsalable items. Items may be left on the back porch of the society's Robinson House, 10 Broad Street or on Stan Howe's side porch at 18 Broad Street at any time. Those wishing to rent a 3 x 6 foot table space for $20 each to sell their items are encouraged to call the society at 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910. Large items may be picked up by calling the society.

Founded in 1966, the Bethel Historical Society is western Maine's largest and most comprehensive historical agency. With over 1,000 members, the society fosters a sense of place - with a focus on western Maine and the White Mountain region - by collecting, preserving, displaying and interpreting historically significant artifacts and documents for residents, visitors, students, and scholars. Through its exhibits, programs, events, and publications, the society makes the region's history meaningful, accessible, and enjoyable. In 1974, the society acquired the former Broad Street residence of Dr. Moses Mason, which now contains a period house museum, exhibit hall and research library. In 1999, the society opened the O'Neil Robinson House (next door at 10 Broad Street) to the public for an expanded exhibit program, museum shop space, and administrative offices. Over the past forty years, the society's achievements have been recognized by a number of state and national organizations.

Probert releases new book

Randall Probert a retired Maine Game Warden has recently released his newest book, "Paradigm II," a sequel to "Paradigm."

In 2008 Probert wrote Paradigm for fun while researching "Trial at Norway Dam." There had been some ideas rolling around in his head for years, he said, and he decided to put those ideas in a book. At the time he had no plans of a sequel, but after receiving so many requests for one he decided to do it.

Probert said he went out side of the box exploring and researching his understanding of Greek Mythology and what is happening in our world today.

In the book Paradigm, Royce Paxton and his Dolphin crew have returned to Earth, only to discover that their world has been destroyed and there now exists one huge continent that has emerged where Atlantis had once been. This new continent is inhabited by a primitive people, who at some time had lived a some what civilized existence. But now, houses stand empty, while the villagers live in caves. Almost as if here, time is reversing.

The crew decides their best option is to return to Uhuru, but first, they need to steal a copper headstone which they believe contains answers to many questions concealed within.

Did the nuclear war set the earthquakes in motion destroying all land masses? Or did the polarity shift cause the earthquakes?

Or was there another force which purposely destroyed all of Earth's civilizations except for the Cathmore family?

Paradigm II will take readers outside of the box and back again with a new and evolved understanding.

Obituaries

JOHN E. FOX

John E. Fox, 85, of Lovewell Pond Road, Fryeburg, died Sunday, May 15, 2011 at Mineral Springs, North Conway, N.H.

He was born in Stow, Dec. 1, 1925, a son of Augustus and Eliza Smith Fox, but grew up in West Lovell and was educated in local schools. He was a U.S. Army Veteran of World War II.

He was employed by Lovell Lumber for 43 years, retiring in 1987. He was a very kind and gentle man who enjoyed many quality years of camping with his family, and tinkering in his garage. He also loved old cars.

He is survived by his wife of almost 69 years, Violet Fox; his daughter, Diana and her husband, Dwight McHellan, of Conway, N.H.; daughter, Kay Legare and her husband, Paul Legare, of North Waterford; he also left behind three grandchildren, Kevin McHellan of Cambridge, Mass., Michael McHellan and his wife, Cindy, of Fryeburg and Michelle and Jane Legare, of North Waterford; two great-grandchildren, Matthew McHellan and his fiancée, Karissa Watkins and Marcus McHellan of Fryeburg.

He was predeceased by his infant daughter, Fay Ann Fox; and his only sibling, Charles Fox.

We appreciate the special care that Merriman House gave to dad during the seven years that he was a patient there and also to Mineral Springs Nursing Home during the last two years of his life. For the many years that he was in the nursing home his wife, Violet, would drive to North Conway almost every day to visit him. At the nursing home, Violet would play songs by Peter Allen.

Online condolences may be expressed to the family at www.woodfuneralhome.org.

A graveside service will be held at 2 p.m., May 19, at Riverside Cemetery, North Fryeburg. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Mineral Springs Nursing Home, PO Box 3417, North Conway, NH 03860.

He was an avid reader and loved visiting with his many friends. Norman lived in Woodstock all his life and he earned his living by working in the woods.

He is survived by Janice Myers; niece of Florida, and her children, William Alvin Myers Jr., Bertha Ann Myers, Richard Alan Myers and Elizabeth Myers; nine great-nieces and nephews; and his best friend, Leon Poland of Woodstock.
